4. What are cookies and who processes the data?

When you visit our website, we place a small data file called ‘cookie’ on your device. A cookie is a data packet that is not suitable for personal identification, which is sent by the server of the website to the device you use for browsing, and it is saved in its browser application. The sending server can later read it from there, but it cannot be used by any other website.

You can delete cookies from your device at any time or set your browser to block them by default. However, by disabling cookies, the site may not function properly.

5. Types of cookies

Cookies can be session cookies or persistent cookies.

Session cookies enable the website to function properly during a visit and allow the user's preferences to be remembered throughout the browsing session and until the expiry of the cookie. These cookies allow you to navigate within the website without having to repeat certain processes (e.g. entering certain settings) each time.

Persistent cookies are cookies that are stored on the device until they expiry even after leaving the website or closing the browser, allowing the user's preferences or actions to be applied during a subsequent visit.

Saved cookies are stored on the device until the expiry date, but can be deleted before the predefined expiry date.

6. Functions of the cookies used by our website and the legal basis for processing related to cookies

Based on their function, cookies can be essential, functional, statistical or marketing cookies, but our website only uses cookies with the following functions:

- 6.1 Statistical cookies used on our website to analyze website traffic provide us feedback on which sections of our website are interesting and useful to visitors, helping us to improve the website to provide a better user experience.

In the case of statistical cookies, the legal basis for processing is the user's consent pursuant to Article 6(1)(a) of the GDPR. If you consent to the use of cookies, your browser will store cookies on your computer or other device so that our system can recognize your preferences.

The consent will expire from time to time, and you may also withdraw your consent at any time before the expiry of this period. You can do this at any time in the cookie settings of your browser. Please note that withdrawal of consent shall not affect the lawfulness of data processing based on consent prior to its withdrawal.

- 6.2 Functional cookies used by our site are in practice linked to statistical cookies in the sense that they are used to store your consent to the use of statistical cookies.

In the case of functional cookies, the legal basis for processing is the user's consent pursuant to Article 6(1)(a) of the GDPR. If you consent to the use of cookies, your browser will store cookies on your computer or other device so that our system can recognize your preferences.

The consent will expire from time to time, and you may also withdraw your consent at any time before the expiry of this period. You can do this at any time in the cookie settings of your browser. Please note that withdrawal of consent shall not affect the lawfulness of data processing based on consent prior to its withdrawal.

7. Cookies actually used by our website

9. The principal rights of the data subject related to processing

9.1 Right to access

The data subject shall have the right to obtain from the controller, through the contact details provided in point 1 of this privacy notice, information as to whether or not their personal data are being processed and, if such processing is taking place, the right to obtain information as to whether or not

- what personal data, on what legal basis, for what data processing purposes is processed by the controller and for how long;
- to whom, when and under what legislation has the controller granted access to their personal data or to whom their personal data have been transferred;
- the source of the personal data;
- the controller applies automated decision-making, as well as its logic, including profiling.

The controller shall, upon the data subject's request, provide the data subject with a copy of the personal data subject to the processing, free of charge for the first time, and may charge a reasonable fee based on administrative costs thereafter.

In order to meet data security requirements and to protect the rights of the data subject, the controller shall verify the identity of the data subject and of the person who wishes to exercise their right of access, and, to this end, the information, access to data and the issuing of copies of the data are also subject to the identification of the data subject.

9.2 Right to rectification

The data subject may, through the contact details set out in clause 1 of this privacy notice, request the controller to rectify any of their personal data. Where the data subject can credibly demonstrate the accuracy of the rectified data, the controller shall comply with the request within a period of up to one month and shall notify the data subject thereof using the contact details provided by the data subject.

9.3 Right to blocking (restriction of processing)

The data subject may, through the contact details provided in clause 1 of this privacy notice, request the restriction of processing of their personal data by the controller (by clearly indicating the restriction of processing and ensuring that processing is carried out separate from other data). The controller will comply with this request if one of the following conditions is met:

- the data subject contests the accuracy of the personal data, in which case the restriction applies for the period of time necessary to allow the controller to verify the accuracy of the personal data,
- the data processing is unlawful and the data subject opposes the erasure of the data and instead requests the restriction of their use,
- the controller no longer needs the personal data for the purposes of the processing, but they are required by the data subject for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims,
- the data subject has objected to the data processing (in this case, the restriction applies for the period until it is established whether the legitimate grounds of the controller override those of the data subject).

9.4 Right to object

With regard to the legal basis of the processing, the data subject does not have this right.

9.5 Right to erasure

The data subject may, through the contact details provided in clause 1 of this privacy notice, request the erasure of their personal data which means that the controller is obligated to erase the data concerning the data subject without undue delay if:

- the personal data are no longer necessary for the purposes for which they were processed by the controller;
- the personal data have been unlawfully processed;
- the controller is under a legal obligation to erase the data and has not yet done so.

9.6 Right to remedy

If the data subject considers that the data processing infringes the provisions of the GDPR or Act CXII of 2011 on the Right to Informational Self-Determination and the Freedom of Information, or holds that the way in which the data controller processes their personal data is injurious, we recommend to first contact the data controller directly with a complaint. All complaints will be investigated.

If, despite their complaint, the data subject still has a grievance about the way the controller processes their data or wishes to contact the authorities directly, they can lodge a complaint with the National Authority for Data Protection and Freedom of Information (address: H-1055 Budapest, Falk Miksa utca 9-11.; mailing address: H-1363 Budapest, Pf. 9.; email: ugyfelszolgalat@naih.hu; website: www.naih.hu).

To protect their data, the data subject may turn to court, which will rule on the case out of turn. In this case, you are free to choose whether to bring your claim before the court of your domicile (permanent address) or residence (temporary address) (<http://birosag.hu/torvenyszekek>).

You can find the court in your place of residence or domicile at the website <http://birosag.hu/ugyfelkapcsolati-portal/birosag-kereso>.

This notice is effective and applicable from 18 March 2024.
